

DVD Number 72

Agriculture in Dorchester's Past, Present, and Future, Steele Phillips, 1 April 2008

contour strips

Steele Phillips is a life-long resident and farmer in the Vienna area of Dorchester County. He was first to use, and led farmers in Eastern Maryland to adopt, soil and water conservation methods later generally accepted in farming. Steele has championed good environmental methods throughout his lifetime, and had chaired the Dorchester Soil Conservation Committee for many years.